Fund Family Research - To meet ever growing advisor and investor needs fund families have added dozens of fund choices from a multitude of different asset classes. The STIR goal is to build a diversified model that allocates assets into funds demonstrating greater relative strength and momentum (leaders). STIR strives to identify leading asset classes and ranks all of the individual funds within those asset classes with the greatest potential for appreciation given current market conditions. The model goals are to outperform the average growth fund and the broad market indexes over time and with less risk.

Preferred Fund Family Research - Investment options within fund and variable fund families have never been more complex. The STIR Preferred Fund Families have gone the extra mile to add more choices for the tactical and absolute managers than any other fund families. This explains the reason that they stand alone in being the fastest growing of the hundreds of fund families available. While many fund families have added dozens of fund choices from a multitude of different asset classes, the Preferred Fund Families have integrated all of these and innovatively added leveraged and short fund options! In addition to serve tactical allocation practitioners these fund families offer an unlimited amount of exchanges an advisor or institutional investor may make. The Preferred Fund Families serve the best interests of both the traditional strategic advisor and the more sophisticated needs of the tactical advisor.
